POEHLER MAKES WORLD RECORD FOR TEN STRINGS

In Match With Archie Walsh Rolls
1111--Shows Wonderful Form and Defeats Boston Bowler by Good Margin.

Paul Poebler created a new world's when at the Arcade alleys, in his record for a ten string, candle pins, match with Archie Walsh of Boston in competition, on Thursday evening he rolled 1111, on an average of 111 for each string. The previous record was held by Poebler himself and it was 1091 made by Poebler in Berlin last year. Poebler was in great form last evening and with new pins his record is liable to hold for some time.

The match was between Poebler and Archie Walsh of Boston, the diminutive bowler, who has been making all of the cracks go for the past two years. Walsh is but twenty years old and small for his age, but

PORTSMOUTH HARBOR FOR GRAND TRUNK TERMINAL

Prof. Hewitt of N. H. College Believes
State Should Take Up Matter--One of State's Natural Resources.

Much is being said in regard to the possibility of the Grand Trunk Railroad extending its lines through some part of New Hampshire and using Boston as its terminal. Boston has at last awakened to the fact that it has many natural advantages as a sea port and has already taken steps to ascertain what can be done to develop them. A little over a month ago, five men were appointed to constitute a "Board of Directors of the Port of Boston" with Gen. Hugh Baneroff as chairman of the Board. In this very short time much has been done and last Monday a most sweeping recommendation was made by the Board to the legislature. The recommendation calls for the appropriation of fifty millions of dollars for the purpose of developing the Port of Boston.

The writer has often wondered why the city of Portsmouth and the state of New Hampshire are apparently so inactive in this matter of a terminal for the Grand Trunk R. R. The city of Portsmouth, without the peradventure of a doubt, has many natural advantages which ought to make her one of the greatest seaports on the Atlantic coast. New York has to build her piers on eighty to ninety feet of mud and has to expend large sums of money to keep the entrance clear. Several of the great foreign ports have had to spend millions in dredging out an entrance to the harbor.

At Portsmouth there is a sufficient depth of water for the largest vessels to enter with out the expenditure of a single dollar while the ebb and flow of the tide would keep the entrance clear at all times. Again there is sufficient room at Portsmouth for a city of a million or more and ample room for Port extension. The city could offer the Grand Trunk Railroad many advantages that it could not get if the terminal were in Boston. Large steamship lines could dock at Portsmouth and distribute its freight from this point as the very best of railway connections could be provided.

The cost of handling large amounts of freight would be much less at Portsmouth than at Boston. Portsmouth has one of the finest and safest harbors on the Atlantic coast and why should not she and the state in which she has her existence benefit by this important fact?

The state of New Hampshire, in past years, has been noted for her beautiful scenery. It has become known of late that she has a large amount of undeveloped water power, some of which has been recently developed but unfortunately most of the power is used out of the state, a deplorable fact; and many thousands of horse power will be developed in the near future and it is hoped that the state officials will see to it that the power is used within the state.

The time is now at hand when we should take advantage of another natural resource in the development of our sea front at Portsmouth.

The writer believes that a committee should be appointed at once by the governor and his councilors to look into this matter, to confer with the officials of the Grand Trunk R. R. and to ascertain what can be done.

VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF IN SUPERIOR COURT

Dr. Towle of Newmarket
Wins His Case

The jury in the case of Dr. George H. Towle of Deerfield against Charlotte E. Towle, also of Deerfield, administratrix of the late James R. Towle, formerly of Northwood, late Wednesday evening brought in a sealed verdict which was that the defendant did promise to pay the note of $2400 and was ordered to pay the amount alleged to be due on the remainder of the sum and which amounted to $1289.76. The case was an appeal from a commissioner.

Immediately proceeding the reading of the verdict by Clerk of Court Charles H. Knight a jury was drawn in the case of George M. Austin of Lawrence, Mass., against Ernest J. Henry of Salem, which is a suit brought by the plaintiff, who alleges that there is $100 due him as a commission on a farm sold in the spring of 1910.

Attorney Grinnell of Derry in stating the case to the jury that Mr. Austin found a party who was willing to buy the Henry farm in Salem. The parties called upon the defendant, who submitted a proposition, but later Mr. Henry saw fit to refuse the bargain. Austin thus brings the suit for the commission.

The foreman of the jury was John Kimball of Exeter and the attorneys engaged are G. K. and R. T. Bartlett, and H. L. Grinnell, Jr., of Derry for the plaintiff, and Eastman, Seamon and Gardner of Exeter for the defendant.

YOUNG CHILD IS BADLY BURNED BY STOVE COVER

And Will Probably Lose the Sight of
One Eye

Abraham, the two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wolf Weinstein, who live on Brewster street was badly burned this morning and may lose the sight of an eye as the result of the accident.

The child's father was in the act of taking off one of the covers from the hot stove with his hand, and in falling struck the little fellow, who was playing on the floor, on the right eye.

As soon as possible the little fellow was taken to the office of Dr. Fred S. Towle, who on making an examination sent the child to Dr. A. J. Lanco, the eye specialist for treatment.

Dr. Lanco found that the young child had sustained a bad burn about the eye and that the sight was affected. Whether the child would lose the entire sight of the eye he is unable to determine at the present.

William Langley of Union street, 88 years, 9 months of age, the oldest citizen of Exeter died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Emma Sanborn, yesterday from the infirmities of old age. He was born in Pembroke, April 17, 1823, and had followed many vocations. In the course of his life he had been a voter in five different states of the Union, New Hampshire, where his first vote was cast, Massachusetts, Maine, Ohio and New Jersey. For many years he was a resident of Skowhegan, Me., but came to Exeter in 1903, where he had since resided. He enlisted in the service of his country to serve in the Mexican war, but was discharged after serving a short period on Governor's Island, owing to what is termed "white swelling" in his leg, which rendered him unfit for service as it incapacitated him for long marches. He had been versatile in his calling and "turned his hand" most aptly to gain a livelihood. He was married to Eliza McGrillis in 1843 and had six children, three of whom are now living, they being Mrs. Emma Sanborn and Mrs. Grace Morse of Exeter, and a son, William Langley of Waterville, Me. also a brother H. B. Langley of Oskosh, Wis.

A pleasing musical was rendered last evening by the First Parish Club of the First church, the entertainment being pleasantly given by the Dutch quartet of Boston, assisted by Mr. Sykes, tenor. A program of eleven numbers was rendered. The quartet was composed of Messrs. Dallinger, Hoff, Tinkham and Upham, and they were heard in the opening number "Don Juan" and the closing numbers, "The Shepherds Dance" and "Torch Dance." Messrs. Tinkham, Upham and Dallinger also rendered solos, and the tenor solos of Mr. Sykes were appreciated.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

"Feed the Birds" is one of the Hub's Humanitarian Crises—Thrift, Too, Has Its Inspired Bard—Woman Citing in Same Sent Since "The Creation" Inspires Musical Mot—Men Musicians May Now Compete for Gold Medalion and "The Achievement of American Music"—Minimum Wage Report Moralizes on Efficiency.

Boston, Jan. 20—"Feed the birds" is the plea sent out by Edward Forbush, Massachusetts state ornithologist, in a circular calling attention to the suffering of the feathered creatures during such weather as has prevailed recently. The tiny creatures can withstand the cold well enough when the ground is covered with snow so deep that they cannot get at food, they live but short time. Mr. Forbush urges that bits of beef or meat fastened to the trees above the snow line and above the reach of dogs and cats, or marrow bone or bits of cocoanut or bread or seed of various kinds scattered on the ground may save many a bird from starvation and not only be a humane act but a step in the saving of our trees and vegetation from the pests of next summer.

Louis C. Elson, the well known music critic, tells of an incident of one of the triennial festivals of the Handel and Haydn society. Two of the veterans had taken the wrong seats in the auditorium. A gentleman holding the proper seat checks politely inquired if they were not in the wrong seats. "No," was the reply "these are our regular seats." "But I sat here yesterday," murmured the applicant. "You must be mistaken," was the firm response, "for we have sat here since 'The Creation.'"

Commendation is being justly given the minimum wage commission which has handed in its report and recommendations to the Legislature of the Bay State. The investigation of this board of experts it is hoped will result in the passage of laws bettering the conditions under which women wage earners are at present working and in establishing minimum wage for all classes of work. It is not necessarily true that wage earners are not efficient enough to earn money for in many cases it is found on investigation that an inefficient person is at the head of the concern. The cry of the impossibility of getting efficient workers often indicates something lacking in scientific management of the industry itself, for those who conduct their business on the right basis seldom find difficulty in getting efficient people to work and in being able to pay them reasonable compensation. The inefficiency of the worker is too often directly traceable to the man higher up.

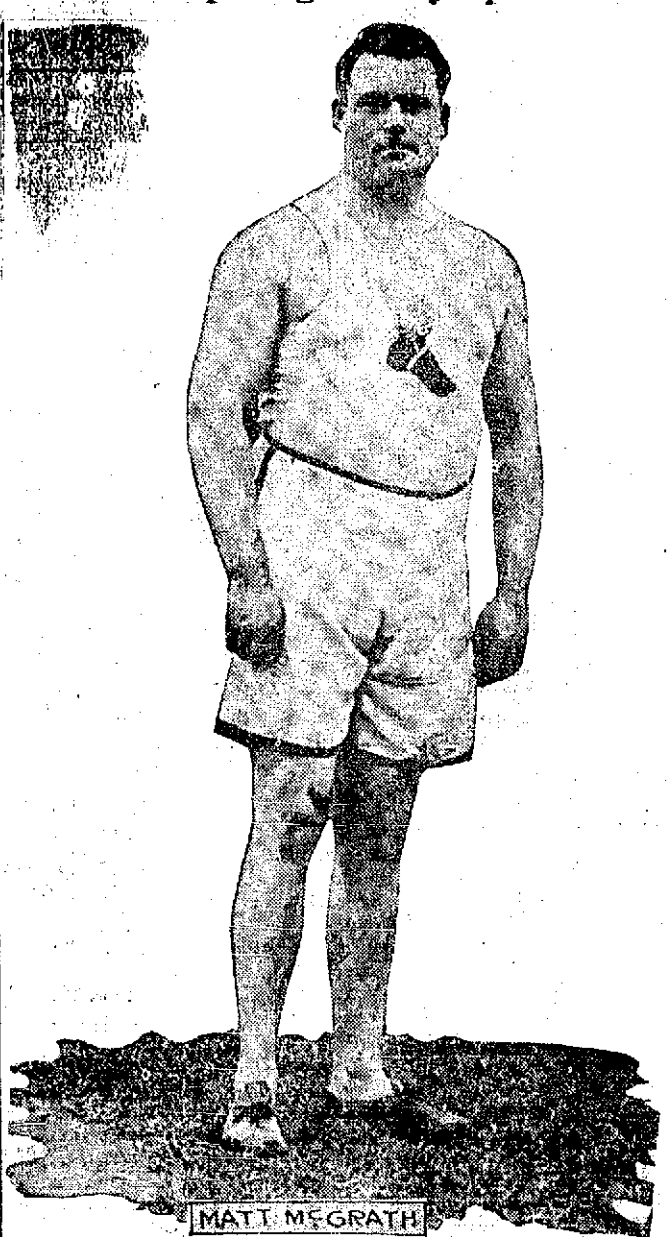

It is conceded that anyone who can make poetry out of life insurance is a genius, and an indication of the heartfelt enthusiasm inspiring the officers of the saving bank life insurance movement lies in a poem which embodies the ring and fervor of 1870 and is dedicated to the League by its financial secretary, Miss Alice H. Grady. The poem consists of nine stanzas of which the following will give an idea of the spirit behind the pen.

"In the County where the Pilgrim Fathers labored for the Right,
And the love for Independence fought its way into the Light,
Comes new call to Independence—to the righting of a wrong;
If you listen you can hear it—ringing clear, and loud, and long.
... the call to Freedom sounded, ringing out from Beacon Hill—
The Governor has signed the Savings Bank Insurance Bill!
From Plymouth County echoed an answer sweet and clear—
'You'll find the love of Freedom still strongly anchored here;
'The message springs from man to man—the word is passed along,
And now the 'Army of the Free' is full, five thousand strong.
So day by day are filled from those who understand
Till the time shall come when victory's won, and Freedom guards our Land!"

Actuated by such enthusiasm as this the work of the savings bank insurance league progresses steadily and the number of wage earners who have taken advantage of the opportunity of insuring themselves and their families against the contingencies of death or old age increases as they become aware of the function of the savings bank insurance department.

"For the advancement of music in America" the Sinfonia Fraternity of America, Phi Mu Alpha chapter, is doing a good thing in instituting a prize competition for the best piece of chamber music. This fraternity which was organized at the New England Conservatory of Music some years ago by United Mills, now houses of the music school and which has chapters at the leading American conservatories and schools and departments of music at universities, has a ready made important contribution toward the encouragement of young musicians. At the Conservatory in Boston this year, for example, the "Sinfonia scholarship" presented by Alpha Chapter, is available for some number of the fraternity and there are Alpha Chi Omega and Phi Mu Gamma scholarships. The moral influence of these contributions is felt during the quest which is now being made for scholarship funds to aid music students during their stay in Boston. Now it is announced that to musicians everywhere in the United States, whether Sinfonia members or not, there is open a compensation for the best musical composition suitable for a trio of pianoforte and strings. The prize will be of a gold medalion. The last day for reception of the manuscript is March 15, 1912. The award is due to be made on or before June 15. The judges will be George W. Chadwick, director of the New England Conservatory of Music,

Matt McGrath, Who is Now Certain of Competing in Olympic Games

New York, Jan. 19.—Now that Matt McGrath, the policeman athlete, has announced that he will surely accompany the American team to Sweden next June the Yankee aggregation is assured of several points. Until recently he was not certain of being able to go abroad owing to business reasons. McGrath has a light hold on the sixteen pound hammer and the fifty six pound weight titles and appears a sure winner in these events.

Harold Randolph, director of the Penbudy Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, and Albert A. Stanley, dean of the university school of music, Ann Arbor, Michigan. The arrangements concerning the preparation and submission of manuscripts are in the hands of P. Otis Brayton, Waverly, Mass., prominent among recent Conservatory graduates. This competition makes an interesting addition to the growing number of prizes open to competent and well trained American musicians, some of which, as for example the prizes offered by the associated federation of musical clubs, have already brought forth works of great merit. Considering the present enthusiasm for composition among young men musicians it is predicted that the present competition will attract many interesting manuscripts.

Presidential Nominations

The Democrats would rather have Roosevelt than Taft made the Republican candidate, for they believe the antithird term sentiment would injure Roosevelt, and that his radicalism would also hurt him. The Republicans, conceding the renomination of Mr. Taft, would rather have Mr. Harmon named by the Democrats, or they would then say that both candidates are relatively conservative and that it would be better to have a Taft administration over again than merely a Taft like administration under Mr. Harmon. And as for tactical reasons the Democrats would prefer Roosevelt to Taft for the Republican nominee, so would the Republicans prefer Harmon to Wilson, as the Democratic nominee.

Harmon as a Democrat is respected and not feared by Republicans. Wilson as a Democrat is feared and not liked by Republicans. For the present on the stump Harmon is tending toward unexpected radicalism and Wilson toward unexpected moderation. The psychological play of each is interesting. The likelihood that each may unnurse the other and unwittingly clear the course for an available third is increasing.

That "third?" who knows? We should name Marshall of Indiana or Underwood of Alabama or Clark of Missouri, if required to make a guess among three. That, however, is not "urgent." Today Taft seems to be a renominational certainty, Wilson a nomiminal probability, Harmon a nomiminal possibility, and Marshall, Underwood and Clark nomiminal liabilities.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Cookery Points

Winter Salad.
Salads for winter, whether served with roast meat or game, are an important branch of the cold weather cuisine. Salads can be made from most of the ordinary winter vegetables—cucumbers, celery, beet root, tomatoes, cabbages, etc., and there are also available corn salad and the German salad potatoes, the latter of which are prepared in the same way as a potato salad.

Corn salad is often eaten without any garnish, as it has a delicate flavor of its own. It is at its best, however, when prepared with beets, but only a simple dressing should be used.

The beet is a very valuable winter salad vegetable. It is added as a garnish to most salads and can itself form the basis of a most delicious salad.

A favorite French beet salad is made as follows: Cut up a boiled beet into thin slices and steep in vinegar, pepper and salt for a little while. Prepare in the same way some potatoes, a few celery roots and, if liked, a few truffles.

Colonial Apple Pie.

Sift one and one-fourth cupsful of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder and one of salt. Place in a bowl and put into the mixture one-half cupful of cold lard. Beat one egg and add it together with sufficient ice water to make a stiff dough. Chill, divide into two parts and line a deep pie pan with one part, allowing the paste to hang over the edge of the pan about an inch. Fill the prepared pan with thinly sliced apples, heaping them up. Cover with a covering of pie paste cut so as just to reach the edge of the pan. Now fold the lower crust up over the top one and press firmly together. Prick with a fork and bake in a moderate oven an hour. When cool cut around the edge with a sharp knife. Remove the upper crust, mash the apples fine and season with butter, sugar and cinnamon. Replace the top crust and serve with sweetened cream.

Boiled Tripe.

Unless the tripe is very tender it should be boiled as soon as it comes from the market. The pickled tripe is liable to be very sour, and many people prefer to use the fresh honeycomb tripe and add some acid condiment.

Drain the tripe and wipe dry; brush the crinkled surface with melted butter and sprinkle fine cracker dust over the top. If impossible to wipe dry, lay it first in the cracker dust.

Lay it in a greased wire broiler and broil the plain surface until it is warmed through, about four minutes, then turn and broil the crinkled surface until a delicate brown. Be careful not to burn it, as the crumbs scorch easily. Slip it off on a hot platter, crumb side up, and spread with maitre d'hotel butter. Garnish with lemon and watercress.

Escaloped Oysters.

Take two quarts of oysters. Wash them and drain off the liquor. Roll some crackers (not too fine), put a layer of oysters into a pan, cover with a layer of crumbs, some bits of butter and a little pepper and salt, then a layer of oysters, and repeat until the dish is full. Have cracker crumbs on the top. Turn a cupful of oyster liquor over it, add good sweet milk sufficient to saturate it thoroughly and bake three-quarters of an hour.

Coffee Fruit Cake.

One cup of molasses, a cup of brown sugar, a cup of butter, a cup of raisins, a cup of English currants, an egg, a cup of coffee (left over), a teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon and allspice, four cups of flour. Mix well and bake an hour in a slow oven. This quantity makes one large cake or enough for six meals in a family of five. It is improved by the addition of two eggs.

Sponge Cake For Children.

One and a half cupsful of pastry flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder or one teaspoonful of soda and one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Add two eggs broken into a cup, then fill up with thin cream and one cupful of sugar. Stir all together in a mixing bowl, flavor with lemon or vanilla. The secret is in the beating, five minutes or more.

Grapefruit Cocktails.

Peel the grapefruit and remove the flesh of each section from the tough skin that divides them. Place each portion in a sherbet or a cocktail glass and pour over them the juice of maraschino cherries or pineapple syrup. Garnish with a cherry and serve ice cold.

Concerning Turnips.

Turnips are useful in soups. They give the stock a good flavor. Turnips contain a substance which gives the soups in which they are cooked a gelatinous consistency when cold. Yellow turnips ought to be boiled about two hours.

LAWRENCE STRIKERS
WILLING TO ARBITRATE

Demand for Full Wages for Fifty-Four Hours Principal Issue.

Lawrence, Jan. 18.—An early settlement of the strike of 15,000 textile mill workers in this city, which has been marked by bloodshed and disorder, was looked for today by certain officials who have assumed conciliatory duties. A definite plan for arranging a settlement has been sent to the operatives and owners under the direction of Governor Foss, and it is understood that both sides have agreed, or will soon agree, to arbitrate on the suggested basis. It is understood the plan proposed includes the concession by the mill owners of the demands of the strikers for fifty-six hours' wages for fifty-four hours' work.

That the strikers have agreed to forego the additional demands of a fifteen per cent increase in wages over the fifty-four hour rate, is understood on good authority. It is believed, however, that they insist on the abolition of the bonus and premium system and that the mill owners are ready to concede this. Their demands for double pay for overtime will be abandoned, it is believed, if the present negotiations prove successful. This is confidently believed by those in the councils of the mediators, and it was predicted that the strike would be over by next Monday. Prominent in the negotiations which have been quietly pursued for two days have been Governor Foss, to whom the progress was reported and who supervised the mediatory campaign; Colonel E. Leroy Sweetser, who is commander of the provisional regiment of State militiamen, which was called into duty in Lawrence to preserve peace; Max Mitchell, president of the Jewish Charities in Boston, and Bernard J. Supple, secretary of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

The plan which was suggested to the strikers and mill owners as a means of settling the existing differences, had its inception with Colonel Sweetser. Mr. Mitchell at the same time was proceeding along very similar lines and an understanding was reached between them as to how it was to be worked out.

Colonel Sweetser conferred last evening with Joseph J. Ector, the New York organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World, who has directed the strike, at a meeting held in the State armory here. Ector agreed to the suggested plan for the most part. It is understood, but could not be prevailed upon then to agree definitely to accept it. Mr. Mitchell hastened here last night and worked among the strikers and their leaders until an early hour this morning.

The strikers met him in a pleasing spirit and it is believed that ultimately all points on which there might develop serious objections to agreement by either side. He held a short conference with Colonel Sweetser at the armory this morning, following which he went to Boston to report to Governor Foss. Simultaneously with the conferences with the strikers, meetings were held by other mediators with President William M. Wood of the American Woolen Company and another mill official in Boston and Lawrence. It is understood these small conferences had a favorable result and that the mill owners, it is said, were brought into line. According to information from reliable sources the mill owners are understood to have agreed to grant the strikers' original demands for the payment of fifty-six hours' wages for the fifty-four hours' work which is allowed under the new law.

LITERARY NOTES

Stella Maris

The second instalment of William J. Locke's new novel, "Stella Maris," will be an engrossing feature of the February Century. From the tragedy of the second chapter involving the sentence to penal servitude of the wife of John Risca, (Stella's "Greatest Beloved"), in the romantic court held by her, the scene changes to the Channel House, the invalid's to the Channel House, the invalid's are disclosed which impelled it to give up his plan of deserting Stella for a life of obscurity in Australia. This novel, of mingled strength and charm, will run through the Century during 1912, and will be illustrated by the English artist, Frank Willes.

The February Strand Magazine

The February Strand contains many articles of interest, foremost among them being one by Dr. William Brown, entitled: "Is Love a Disease?" According to Dr. Brown it is and should be treated as such. Another article of especial interest is: "Who Are the Ten Greatest Men Now Alive?" The question was put to a large number of celebrities and Americans may be interested to learn that in every list sent in the name of Thomas Edison appears. And only second in popularity comes that of Theodore Roosevelt. "Lip Reading" is fully explained by C. Sibley Haycock, and an added interest is given to the article by the many photographs which accompany the text. "How the King Works," which is written by a member of the royal household, proves that George is no shirker and labors as hard as any of us. The fiction consists of a dozen short stories by such popular writers as Morley Roberts, Richard Marsh, Mrs. Philip Chompton de Presigny, Austin Phillips, etc. For the youngsters there is a series of fairy stories translated from the Russian and specially selected by the Czar for his own children.

HOW TO TREAT PIMPLES

It is really remarkable how Cadum, the new remedy, causes pimples to disappear. Bad cases are frequently relieved in a few days. Cadum causes pimples to dry up and fall off leaving the skin soft and smooth. Pimples are a disease of the skin, and are not caused by bad blood, as many people suppose. Cadum helps these disgusting blemishes because it is applied direct to the trouble. It is an antiseptic and prevents infection from disease germs. Cadum should be immediately applied to a pimple, scratch, sore or wound, as neglect of these small troubles sometimes proves serious. At all druggists, 10c. & 25c.

be erected in the United States is in the course of construction on the shore of Lake Champlain, and will commemorate the deeds of the French explorer after whom the lake is named. A lighthouse now stands at Crown Point, New York, and the determination to make it a memorial of that discoverer was reached during the course of the tercentenary celebration of the discovery, in 1909. There are several memorial light houses in Europe, but none has so far been erected in the United States. The old stone lighthouse at Crown Point was made the basis of the plan which architects were set to work completing. The project provides for the reconstruction of the old light tower in monumental form.

Those having Monterey cypress hedges on their premises would do well to postpone trimming them until after the 1st of April. A number of these hedges with which the writer is acquainted have been virtually killed off by doing the job in the winter.

Rev. Arthur W. Cleaves of Newburyport, pastor of the Baptist church of that city, and an editorial writer of some note, was the speaker before the Business Men's Supper at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening and there were about ninety to hear him.

He had for his subject "The Business Man and his Relations to Civic Righteousness," a subject that he handled very well and without gloves. He took up the situation in the city of Portsmouth and his own city and told of some of the abuses which were sure to creep in if the civil authorities were not backed up, strongly by the business men, and said that after all it was public opinion that made the enforcement of the law possible. He also set forth that a city should present a clean and attractive front door and at this time paid his respects to the local depot in a manner that brought forth applause.

Next week the speaker will be Dr. W. R. MacAusland of Boston, a well known surgeon, who will have an illustrated lecture on "The Conservation of Human Energies."

The Lincoln Memorial

It is an interesting fact, if one not easily explained, that half a century after the patient Lincoln was encouraging the organization of the army of the Potomac and the first movement upon Richmond, when members of his cabinet were distrustful of his abilities, and when he was a subject of controversy even in the North, and in his own party—that fifty years after there should be bitter controversy over the kind of memorial to be set up for him by a reunited and grateful nation. Congress has already appropriated two million dollars for such a memorial but has left the kind of memorial to be agreed upon only providing that if it shall be within the District of Columbia. This latter provision, however, is not taken seriously, and hence the proposition that there shall be a Lincoln road constructed between Washington and Gettysburg; also that there shall be a road built between Washington and Richmond, uniting the capital of the nation with a former capital of the Confederacy. The latter proposition would unquestionably be the better of the two, and there is no question that the automobile and other interests want one or the other adopted. But it is easily shown that not only the act of Congress needs to be modified, but the appropriation must be increased to at least twenty million, while the annual cost of subsequent maintenance would be equal to the original appropriation of two million. In Washington itself there are two or three propositions, but it looks as if most of them had at bottom the idea of promoting the value of real estate in this or that section of the city. There is one proposition which happily is free from such a suspicion. It is that of the special commission and the society of architects. It would consist of a memorial constructed on land already owned by the government in a straight line between the White House and the Washington monument near the Potomac, and in view of the surrounding country for many miles. A structure such as is proposed would require no further expense for maintenance, and it would be at the same time something in which the people of all the country, north and south, could take pride as could not be the case with a road to Gettysburg, which would always remind the South of defeat. The subject is certain to come up in the present congress and presumably must be finally determined. For the Emancipator himself it of course does not matter what the decision may be, but for the nation itself it matters a great deal. It would seem as if the voice of the country must be for a tasteful memorial structure on the grounds already in possession of the government and unimproved near the Potomac, which so long divided the North and the South, and there is reason in the request of the American Institute of Architects that the American people unite in urging their congressmen to support the placing of the Lincoln memorial upon the site already designated by the park commission.—Manchester Union

FOR TEN STRINGS

he is a clever bowler and his rolling last evening, 1049, is very fast. He had several bad breaks and rather played in hard luck at times. He stuck right to his work and kept picking them off with a regularity that was surprising.

There was a large crowd of fans present and they were kept keyed up at all times. Poehler in the ninth string missed three single pins, spares in succession, something out of the ordinary for him as he is usually deadly on singles. He only had one bad string, his sixth, when he failed to get a spare and rolled 94, and this and his last string of 98 were the only two where he failed to make over the century mark. In the seventh he started as though he was after the alley record, making a strike followed by a spare and then a strike, but he slipped up in the last two boxes and was satisfied with 141. This was the high string of the evening. Walsh got two strings of 120 which was his high mark.

Walsh took the lead in the opening string making 126 to Poehler's 105. He fell off on the next string and only got 93. His low string, while Poehler had 111, but still had the lead. In the third string Poehler was 108 while Walsh had 99 and from that time on Poehler kept the lead. He won the fourth string 138 to 109, and Walsh won the next three strings, the fifth by three pins, the sixth by six and the seventh by one, but the eighth Poehler came back in fine shape and put up 141 while Walsh had 125. The ninth went to Poehler, 108 to 97, and the tenth and last by 98 to 90. He won the match by a total of 1111 to 1049.

The summary:

AND TODAY IS FRIDAY.

Foley and Morrison, the Market street tailors, heard the call of the wild Thursday and it was to strong to resist, so leaving a subordinate in charge they packed their fishing kit N. H., to the sub-station of the pet, and started for Chase Pond in York town in Keene, and asking for a determination of the compensation to be paid for danger incurred. This line in intended to cross land of several owners situated in Swanzy and Winchester.

A wireless message to Eddie Brown at midnight reported that they had hauled in a bushel basket of pickers and they were still biting, and to tell their friends not to buy fish for dinner today, as they would be home early. Regular customers it is understood will have first choice.

The efforts of the powers to bring about peace between Italy and Turkey are likely to succeed. Indications are that hostilities in Tripoli will end next month. Turkey's financial needs are daily becoming more serious, and this fact is proving a most effective lever in the negotiations. The lower picture shows Italian officers talking over plans.

Millions can be saved to the people by practicing strict economy and inducing a higher degree of efficiency in the Government's work, according to Mr. Taft. He says it so convincingly that the average citizen can almost feel his per capita of the saved millions jingling in his vest-pocket.

It is to be deplored that strikes and impending strikes are hanging over the happiness of so many of our laboring people in the neighboring state of Massachusetts at this season of the year. On one side capital must recognize that those in its employ find the cost of living higher than ever before and that thousands of the imported foreign laborers who come here to work on beggarly wages have become so Americanized that want better food, better clothes and better homes. On the other side the laboring man choose his leaders with great care and discretion. It is a grave matter to call a strike of an army of husbands and fathers, who are bread winners in a community in the dead of winter. Men want to consider well the interests of their homes and families before they are swayed by hot-headed orators who are supported in idleness by men who work by the sweat of their brows.

The "dash" along the coast to New foundland now being made by the cutters Androsceggin and Gresham is probably one of the most notable in the history of the revenue cutter service. On the west coast at Bonne Bay and Bay of Islands 30 American schooners, the same fleet of Gloucestermen incidentally whose hardy skipper and crews have provided James B Connolly with the material for his stirring sea tales, are trapped by huge ice floes. The officials at Washington have ordered the cutters to the assistance of these vessels. Probably 400 men and vessel property valued at $100,000 are imperiled. With a 700 or 800 mile trip through proverbially turbulent waters the cutters certainly have a hard crash ahead of them. But it is for such emergencies that the cutter service is maintained and it is to be hoped that the trip will not be fruitless. Judging from the news despatches, however, it would seem improbable that the fleet can be broken out in which event the vessels are likely to remain in the grip of the ice king until Spring. Three of the schooners equipped with a gasoline engine as auxiliary power yesterday tried to break their way through to the open waters beyond the ice jam but had to return and at that narrowly escaped being crushed like egg shells. It is a serious situation for the imprisoned fishermen and the outcome of the attempt of the cutters to release them will be watched with keen interest.—Portland Express.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

Where It Is Really Cold.

In one town in the Canadian Northwest the highest point touched by the thermometer, Wednesday, was 32 degrees below zero. That was in Minnedosa. Battleford was not quite so cold. There the temperature rose at one time to 30 below zero. However, it had fallen to 36 below at 7 o'clock in the evening. Prince Albert had just the same kind of weather that Battleford experienced. Edmonton was comparatively mild. There the highest record for the day was only 22 below zero.

It is the custom for boomers of land in the far Northwest and others who are interested in that region to say that the cold is not felt severely. They expatiate on the dryness of the air and the absence of high winds, and they claim that men and women do not mind 30 or 40 degrees below zero. Yet the fact remains that extraordinarily heavy underclothing is worn in the Canadian Northwest, that furs are used to an extent unknown in this part of the world, and that precautions are taken against frostbite which are not thought of in Ohio.

The cold in the Canadian Northwest has been as far below the worst weather Cleveland has experienced this winter as the Cleveland minimum is below the point which melts snow and thaws the ground. No freedom from humidity, no stillness of the air, can make such conditions anything else than extremely rigorous, a fact often overlooked by Americans who go home-seeking and cortezing in Alberta, Saskatchewan and other provinces of the newest and best advertised part of Canada.—Cleveland Leader.

Time Will Tell.

The convention now sitting for the purpose of drafting a new constitution for the state of Ohio may well invite the attention of the nation. Here is an old conservative state north of the Ohio and east of the centre of population—more nearly typical of better American opinion than perhaps and other in the Union—which has decided to rewrite its organic law under radical auspices. This work in most states has been done by conservatives. The Socialists and other radical groups whenever they have come into power usually complain that they can do little to exemplify their benevolent theories because hampered by the leading strings of organic law. Here is a chance to give to that basis of action at least a dash of radicalism.

How "progressive" the Ohio constitutional convention really is did not become clear till it elected as its president the Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow of the Vine Street Congregational church of Cincinnati. He has long been the "stormy petrel" of Ohio politics. Wherever the radical wing of its Democracy has had an inning Bigelow has done to the bat. John R. McLean, the Cincinnati gas magnate, variously honored by the Democracy of Ohio, publicly declared Bigelow a fool, strengthening his declaration by a somewhat convenient adjectival adjective. This was when the "progressive" was made the candidate for the office of secretary of state. And Bigelow has had about as much fond Fred Williams is commonly reputed to entertain for Henry M. Whitney. Bigelow's church is not generic. It has strayed wholly away in doctrine from the Congregational body to which it was originally attached. "Liberty, equality and fraternity" is the motto written above its portals. Services are held only in the evening, that they may the better serve the convenience of workmen, whom Bigelow attracts in large numbers. His discourses deal with sociology, economics and particularly with the single tax propaganda, of which he is an ardent champion. Even the hymns have been expurgated of all distinctively sectarian phraseology.

Bigelow's convention contains a Democratic majority and a very large "progressive" majority, if in that designation be included both Republican and Democratic believers in the so-called "progressive" program. The recall of judges, for example, finds hearty approval. And this is Taft's own state. While the work of this convention must eventually go before the people for acceptance, that is not a safe reliance, since the general public does not seem at the present moment disposed to regard the radical program as objectionable. California's recent pollings showed this.

The possibility of an experiment station in radicalism, similar to that of Oregon, as near us as Ohio, is one that may, perhaps, be realized before very long. The American people, according to all the signs of the times, are preparing to take large liberties with their traditional frame of government. But that the now pending changes will make it more effectively responsive to popular needs remains to be demonstrated.—Boston Herald.

Now For the Tariff

The week opens with the House approaching the tariff question. In a few days, it is announced the democrats will meet in caucus and discuss the iron and steel schedule, which is to lead in the matter of revision, and also to exchange views as to the schedule to follow party matters of great moment are in the balance, and must be weighed with care. It is hardly believable that the program has been arranged for the purpose of ridiculing Mr. Underwood. The aspersions cast on him by Mr. Bryan never for a moment impressed the public. The chairman of ways and means could well have ignored them. They were based upon rumor and misrepresentation and even Mr. Bryan, who as his party's leader must be sleepless on the watch tower, of danger, may now regret the haste of his outcry.

But, for some reason, the program followed at the extra session has been set aside, and a new one adopted. What was best then is now first and what was first last. Wool this time will be at the tail of the procession, and may not be reached until April. As adjournment early in June is the object of both sides, is there any right to suppose in such circumstances that wool revision is expected or desired at this session by the House?

Logically, the vetoed wool bill of the extra session should have been reintroduced at this session. Those who vetoed for it then should have been willing to put themselves into action again. No change in the proposition has taken place in the past six months so far as they are concerned. They acted then independently of the tariff board's investigations, and declare indifference to them now that the result is at hand.

But politicians are seldom logical in a pinch. Any port in a storm; and some strange ports are sought. The presidential wind is rising and Mr. Underwood has his weather eye peeled for danger. Whether he is reading the clouds and the portents aright it will take time to determine.

Another question is, May we expect legislation in the line of iron and steel? Is legislation the objective? Is not a veto desired and expected? The President while not soliciting an iron and steel schedule at this time in the order of tariff revision by schedule, must pass upon one if one is sent him and as he he would prefer more data than is now at hand he may refuse to accept a bill drawn as he may think more for the purpose of putting him in a hole than anything else.

Present prospects seem to be for a campaign with the Payne law intact, and the whole proposition of a protective tariff in the scale. A downward revision of the law—the wool schedule in particular—will be advocated by both sides—by the one with protection per se in view and by the other with revenue the sole and ruling consideration.—Washington Star.

WILL TELL WHERE HUSBANDS WERE

Brockton, Jan. 18.—Mrs. Harry C. Howard, wife of Mayor Howard; Mrs. William H. Powers, wife of a local Democratic leader and herself prominent in St. Patrick's church, and Mrs. Edward Gilmore, wife of the district campaign manager for Gov. Foss, will be summoned as witnesses against Patrolman Chester W. Osborne, against whom charges have been preferred by Ex-Representative Edward Gilmore and Ex-Alderman H. Powers.

They will be expected to give testimony to refute the statement made prior to the municipal election by patrolman Osborne to the effect that he saw Mr. Gilmore and Mr. Powers leave the house of Mayor Howard at 3 o'clock one morning 10 days before the election.

The three ladies will give testimony to assist their husbands in establishing an alibi that morning.

The hearing will be next Tuesday morning at City hall, and will be public. Patrolman Osborne is now under a suspension of 30 days, Mayor Howard having charged him privately with making untruthful statement regarding the alleged visit of the two Democratic leaders.

Gilmore and Powers brought the same charge this week, and also charged the patrolman with being illegally married, Miss Nettie Beers Sept. 4, 1903, within two years after he had been divorced from his first wife.

The second charge was first learned by Osborne and his wife yesterday and this afternoon they were married again by Clinton F. Packard, assistant city clerk, in the latter's office, Judge Charles C. King having requested the clerk to perform the ceremony without waiting five days as required by the new law. Patrolman and Mrs. Osborne were accompanied by their two children.

Not in years has any case been so widely discussed in public, following the private hearing given Osborne by Mayor Howard.

BITS OF SPORT

This bids fair to be an unusual baseball season. The first month of the new year is over half gone and as yet we have not heard that "Cy" Young had pitched his last game, or that Hans Wagner has retired from the diamond. These statements are annual affairs and probably will be going the rounds in a very short time.

The college athletic conference composed of minor colleges, in the middle West has decided to allow summer baseball provided the players do not play while college is in session. It might be a good plan if colleges of the East also adopted this idea. Why a young man with a bright future before him should not be allowed to earn his way through college by his ability on the diamond gets me.

Connie Mack, the manager of the world's champions, hasn't a care in the world at the present time as he has all his stars signed up to contracts for 1912. But President Fogel of the Phillies is up against it, as several of his best men have not yet affixed their signatures. All of which goes to prove that nothing succeeds quite so well as success.

Eddie Cicotte, the "knuckle" ball artist of the Boston Americans, has signed his contract for the coming year and adds that he expects, this season to be the best he has enjoyed in five years of service with the Boston club. He also picks the Boston and Detroit team as the ones to fight it out for the first position. Naturally Eddie feels that way about it. He is to play with Boston and most ball players think the club they are with is going to win out, especially so when they make their predictions during the winter month. Then too, a player cannot afford to blight his own home town, particularly when that town is represented in the same league in which he is playing. Cicotte lives in Detroit.

Though the majority of the baseball fans in Lynn were pulling for the appointment of Tom Dannon as manager of the New England league club there, the position was given to Arthur McGovern, the club's veteran first baseman. A petition containing 1500 names in favor of Dannon, was presented to the owners of the team, but this failed to turn the trick in favor of the former big league player who is a great favorite in Lynn. Many other well known baseball men were angling for the Lynn berth, but McGovern had the preference, he is an experienced fellow, who is 29

BODY TAKEN FROM REVERE HOUSE RUINS

Boston, Jan. 18.—The burned and disfigured body of Annie McDevitt, aged about 40 years, a laundry employee, was found late today among the charred timbers of the Revere house, which was partially destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning.

Workmen have been digging in the ruins for three days in the belief that the bodies of possibly two victims of the fire would be found. The search today revealed the body later identified as that of Miss McDevitt, who had occupied a room at the top of the hotel in the burned section. The lower part of the body was burned away but the features were sufficiently preserved to be recognizable.

The authorities believe that still another body will be found, that of Miss Susan Doherty, also an employee of the hotel laundry.

TO GIRL GLOBE WITH WIRELESS

Washington, Jan. 18. — What amounts almost to a globe girdling system of wireless communication, which would permit the Navy Department to keep in touch with American vessels in the Atlantic or the Pacific, has been planned by H. C. Cone, U. S. N., chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering. Mr. Cone, with the authorization of Secretary Meyer, will urge the plan before the House Committee on Naval Affairs. He will ask for an appropriation of $1,000,000. Details of the plan have been worked out by Lieutenant Commander D. W. Todd, U. S. N., in charge of wireless in the Bureau of Steam Engineering. To make the plan effective it is proposed to have powerful wireless stations at San Francisco, Panama, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Guam, Samoa and the Isle of Luzon, in the Philippines. These towers, of a height approximating five hundred feet, will be used either in direct or relay communication with the wireless towers now being erected for the navy at Arlington. Rear Admiral Cone is convinced that the perfection of the proposed system would permit the Navy Department to keep in daily wireless communication with American warships on the China station without difficulty. Communication with vessels anywhere in the Pacific would likewise be easily possible, he says.

NAVAL SUPPLY SHIPS FOR CANAL TRADE.

Meyer Plans Line Which Can Be Taken Over in Time of War.

From Secretary of the Navy Meyer, the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce learned of the navy's plan to have the Government build and operate a line of colliers, oil-tank steamships and refrigerator steamships from ports in this country to the Panama Canal Zone. The committee seemed deeply interested in the plan, but did not give any indication of its purpose in the matter. Representative William C. Adamson of Georgia, the chairman, said afterward that he had not made up his mind.

"We expect peace," said Mr. Meyer, "and it would not pay to construct a number of naval colliers for the Panama service that would probably lie idle for many years. It would be advantageous to have vessels that could be constantly used to carry supplies to the canal in times of peace and which could be used by the navy to supply the fleet in time of war."

This precipitated a discussion between the committee and Mr. Meyer about the advisability of the Government entering into the business of commercial shipping. Mr. Meyer thought that the Government ships which he proposed could carry freight cheaper than privately owned vessels, even though the latter returned with a paying cargo and the former did not. He suggested fifteen colliers, three oil-tank ships and four refrigerator ships. When the business of the canal equals that of the Suez Canal, he thought more would be needed. In reply to questions Mr. Meyer said that the United States should not expect to divert trade through the canal from Europe to Australia and Pacific coast ports of South America that lie south of Valparaiso, Chile.

"It is shorter," said Mr. Meyer, for these vessels to go by the way of the Suez Canal than the Panama Canal, according to measurements made by the Navy Department.

For the Children

Clear the Road; the Coaster is Coming.

These are jolly days for the young folks who live where Jack Frost and the snow king hold sway. Brooks and ponds are icebound, and the hills and fields glisten under their covering of snow. What sport to strap on skates and skim like a bird over the glassy ice or to climb the hills and coast like a meteor to the valley below, like the joyous lad in the picture. "Clear the road; I'm coming!" he shouts, and you may be sure his comrades give him plenty of room. It is no joke to be bumped by a boy laden sled whizzing down a steep incline. Then comes the fun of mounting up again to repeat the exhilarating dash. Roses glow in cheeks, and, despite the hilarious enjoyment, dinner time seems long a-coming. Summer sports are fine in their season, but now they seem tame in comparison with the glorious fun made possible by ice and snow.

Here Goes Up For Monday. This game requires seven players, each choosing a name of one of the days of the week. The players stand facing a high solid wall. "Sunday" takes a rubber ball and, throwing it high against the wall, calls out, "Here goes up for —" any day of the week being mentioned. The player whose name has been called must immediately run forward and catch the ball before it reaches the ground, the other players running away. If the ball is caught it is thrown against the wall by the catcher, and he, in his turn, calls a name. When the player fails to catch the ball he misses a point, or on "egg," as it is called. He must then pick up the ball and throw it at another player. If one is hit, that player also loses an egg and has in his turn to throw the ball against the wall. If, however, the player who throws the ball at the other player fails to hit him he must throw the ball against the wall himself. The loss of three "eggs" puts the player "out." The last one having an egg left wins the game.

Stung. "You look worried, old man. What's wrong?" "I was stung by an adder this afternoon." "Heavens! How did that happen?" "The bank clerk told me that my account was overdrawn."—Lippincott's.

POSTAL CLERK TAKES BRIDE

WHAT THE SMALL FARMS ARE SHOWING

While we all admire the proposition that the wealthy business men on large farms are able to put up to demonstrate beyond a question what brains and money can accomplish on a farm be it ever so impoverished and neglected, and yet it is the efforts of the small beginner who is handicapped by lack of means and want of assistance but who in spite of all these severe handicaps is able to make good and demonstrate the possibility of the native soil unaided except by strong hands and determined minds that really counts the most in the general summing up by impartial critics.

It is the small but intelligent farmer who has demonstrated beyond question that it is possible to develop and cultivate a farm until it is as fertile as a flower garden without money or even credit. It is of course possible to produce results quicker with the ready essential to success on a good piece of soil not matter how much it has been neglected. The fact that success is possible under these adverse circumstances is a great encouragement to new beginners who are very apt to find themselves arguing that a farm cannot be successfully conducted without ample means at command. This pernicious fancy has kept many a well meaning young man from making a start on his own book in the world.

The man with brains enough to make good use of wealth who has a leaning towards the land is in a position to do the cause of agriculture a whole lot of valuable service in the way of experiments than a man without means cannot undertake but the poor man if he has the right kind of grey matter in his head can get the benefit of what the man of means learns by his experimenting for he knows there are no secrets in the agricultural fields. With the information that he gets from his rich neighbor the poor man can demonstrate to the world what can be accomplished without large capital and the word of the man without means is always sure to be taken and encouragement received when the demonstration of the wealthy neighbor would pass unheeded by the masses. The underdog theory is ever in evidence in all walks of life.

All honor to the man of means always ready with his time and money to make a demonstration as to what well directed efforts backed with the where with all can and will accomplish in the wide fields of agriculture. No less honors say we to the sterling manhood that has not been endowed with wealth but who has made the very best of what he has had given to do battle with who has made a valiant fight against great odds, but has won out and demonstrated to all the world what courage and pluck can accomplish despite heavy handicaps.

FOR EARLY SPRING.

Cutaway Coats Approved by Best French Tailors.

SUIT OF TAN CLOTH.

There is something essentially French and chic in this gay little cutaway coat, which is part of a Drecol suit built for a spring bride. The suit is of tan cloth, with a band of black ottoman silk on the square collar and buttons of black jet with pearl centers. The boots and gloves are champagne color, the boots being in new sailor top style, with uppers of tan cloth, having flat white buttons.

Wielding the Broom. It is not an easy matter to sweep well, at any rate, if one judges by experience, for when a broom is put into the hands of the inexperienced more harm than good generally results from the use of it.

Light sweeping and soft brooms are desirable. Many a carpet is prematurely worn out by careless sweeping. In sweeping thick piled carpets always brush the way of the pile. By doing so it may be kept clean for years. But if the broom is used in a different way the dust will enter the carpet and soon destroy it.

If the carpet covers the whole floor of the room and it is pulled down, under the chairs and other articles of furniture which can be easily moved in the middle of the room, pin up the curtains and cover the couch with an old sheet.

Pieces of damp paper may be sprinkled around the sides of the room, and then sweep with a carpet broom to ward one place.

Take short strokes, being careful not to raise the broom much. Sweep the corners and edges with a small whisk-broom.

The Test of a Play. John Craig, the donor of the Craig prize for plays, which has been given both last year and this year to women students at Radcliffe in preference to the Harvard students who apply, says that the common fault of plays submitted is thickness. Usually half of the first act is taken up with dialogue that gets nowhere.

They Don't Grow Old. There is a law in Germany that when a dog or cat has passed the age of six years it must be turned over to the police to be killed. Not a dozen animals are turned over a year. No matter how old a cat or dog becomes, the owner vows that the age is five years to a day.

Over eighty years ago the crown granted to the Church of England, by way of endowment, many acres of open land near the city of Toronto, Ontario. NEW TALES THAT ARE TOLD

Nearly a Sacrifice.
Kansas people may not believe it, but former Senator W. A. Peffer once threatened to cut off his whiskers, and the threat was made while he represented the state in the senate.

Two men were riding in an elevator to the senate end of the capitol building at Washington. One was a warm friend of Peffer. The other just knew him by sight. They began to talk of Peffer. The man who had no personal acquaintance with Peffer remarked:

"Senator, I defended you against a serious charge."

That the long whiskered senator was not conducting himself in a manner consistent with a prohibition state.

"What do you mean?" asked the other in surprise.

"Simply that Peffer drinks," said the man. "I saw him take a nip at a hotel bar myself today."

The friend challenged the statement, but the man stood pat.

Finally the friend went to Peffer and said: "Senator, I defended you against a serious charge a few minutes ago, and now I want you to tell me the truth. I challenged the statement of a man who said he saw you take a drink of liquor today."

The senator shrugged his shoulders, looked sorrowfully down at his long whiskers and remarked, "Colonel Ed Manning must either cut off his whiskers or I'll cut off mine." Colonel Manning cut his. —Kansas City Journal.

JUST A REMINDER OF SOLID LAND.

What a Seasick Statesman Desired Above All Things.

A few years ago the late Senator Carmack of Tennessee was put on a special committee of the senate to make some sort of cruise in Boston harbor. The senator from Tennessee was not used to big bodies of water, for they are not to be found in the section of the country he came from.

The vessel had not been tugging with the billows long before Mr. Carmack began to get a trifle sick, and in a short while he found it necessary to slip away to some place where he could repose himself. The man in command of the vessel had instructed one of the men under him to look out for the comfort of the members of the distinguished party. Knowing that Mr. Carmack was violently seasick, having helped him to his room, the man went back to see how he was getting along.

He found the senator rolling and tossing on the couch of the stateroom to which he had been assigned.

"Is there anything you want?" he asked the senator, after indulging in the conventional ceremonies.

"Yes," said the senator, as he pulled himself together. "I would give anything in the world right now for a pinch of dry dirt."

Let Him Off Cheap.

"In the spring of 1870," said Colonel Mike Connelly, a noted newspaper man of Memphis, at the Renner, "I was in the little town of Lampasas, in the Lone Star State, and while waiting to take a stage for Austin went into a barber shop on the main street of the village. The proprietor seemed a very friendly citizen and I was impressed with his air of kindness and good humor. He was so mild mannered that I wondered while he was lathering me if he were not a Sunday school superintendent. While still revolving this speculation he suddenly laid down the razor and, catching up a vicious looking six shooter from a table, murmured: 'Excuse me, sir, for just a minute, but there goes a chap I've got to settle with,' and thereupon he dashed into the street. Before I could climb down from the chair the report of a Colt's 45 reverberated on the air. I didn't know what trouble might ensue, and so concluded to stay where I was, but in a trice my barber was back, as smiling as ever and, begging my pardon profusely, resumed operations on my face.

"I didn't want to kill the dirty greaser, judge," said he in relating the episode, "and just sent one bullet into his left leg." —Baltimore American.

CHESTNUT BARK DISEASE.

Locating and Fighting Infection Centers Only Known Means of Control.

The chestnut bark disease was first recognized as a serious disease in the vicinity of New York city in 1904, and the first publication regarding it appeared in 1905. There is reliable evidence, however, that it was present on Long Island at least as early as 1893. Its origin is unknown, but there is some evidence that it was imported from the orient with the Japanese chestnut. This view is not, however, held by all investigators. But, whatever may have been its time or place of origin, it is certain that it has now spread into at least ten states.

The bark disease appears ultimately to exterminate the chestnut trees in any locality which it infests. Three years ago the financial loss from this disease "in and about New York city" was estimated at "between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000." The agricultural department writers regard $25,000,000 as a conservative estimate of the financial loss from this disease up to 1911. In many localities the greatest damage has been among chestnuts grown for ornamental purposes, which have a value greatly in excess of their value as lumber.

No method of immunizing individual trees against the bark disease is yet known, and no method of treating or curing them when once attacked is certain in its results. While this is unfortunate from the standpoint of the owner of orchard trees and large ornamental trees of great individual value, no method of dealing with single trees—surgery, medication, spraying, etc.—however successful in itself, would meet the demands of the present situation. It is not practicable at present to apply any individual method of treatment to forest trees; the individual tree is not worth it and will not be for many years.

Fortunately, however, there is a method of dealing with the situation which is applicable to the country as a whole and which, so far as tested, is practicable. The disease advances but slowly in a solid line, but instead spreads from isolated centers of infection, often many miles in advance of the main line of disease. It therefore seemed probable that if these advance infections could be located at a reasonably early stage they could be eliminated at relatively little expense, thus preventing further spread from these points at least. It is believed that this method of attack will prove practicable and if carried out on a large scale will result ultimately in the control of the bark disease which has done so much damage.

Adapting Crops to Climates.

The farmer cannot change his climatic environment, but he can grow crops adapted to it. There are two ways of doing this—by the breeding and selection of hardy plants and by the introduction of new species and varieties adapted by nature to new locations. The experiment stations in the different states and territories have been doing work along the first line, and the federal government, through the bureau of plant industry, has been seeking hardy varieties of plants from all parts of the world for introduction into our own country.—Country Gentleman.
